Unlike the networks, here at HBO we don't pull any punchlines. That means we show you comedians at their funniest. Uncut, unrestrained, uncensored. And uncontrollably hilarious.

DREAM ON

Forget every preconceived notion you have about a TV sitcom, including the dress code. This award-winning comedy series takes a very adult look at life and love in the nineties.

HBO COMEDY HOUR

Rodney Dangerfield, Roseanne Barr, George Carlin, Dennis Miller and Garry Shandling, just to name a few. A top comedy star takes the stage every Saturday night on HBO. We're talking serious comedy here.

COMIC RELIEF®

The cast of this extravaganza reads like a "Who's Who" of the best and brightest comedians alive today. It may be the comedy event of the year, but the purpose is no joke. It's all done to aid our nation's homeless.

ONE-NIGHT STAND

These hilarious solo performances feature up-and-comers from today's top comedy clubs. It's the only way you can see comedy this fresh without paying a cover and a two-drink minimum.

THE KIDS IN THE HALL

Comedy can get a little dangerous after midnight on HBO. Especially when "The Kids in the Hall" take over. But be warned, to this group of comic wildmen, nothing is sacred.

Whether it's stand-up comedy, a hilarious sitcom or an outrageous comedy troupe, it's all unabashedly funny when it's on HBO. Because when it comes to comedy, we don't fool around.

SATCOM F4R TO BE REPLACED

On October 22, GE Americom announced plans to replace the Satcom F4R satellite with a newer spacecraft that will offer improved performance. It was recently discovered that Satcom F4R was not responding to telemetry commands and so its mission is in jeopardy. They have filed an application with the FCC to replace Satcom F4R within 45 days. It will be replaced with Anik D2, a more powerful satellite acquired from Telesat Canada. Anik D2 will be moved to Satcom IV's current location of 82 degrees west. Anik D2 will be used until GE Americom launches its C3 and C4 satellites in late 1992.

TURNER LOOKING AT CUBA

Ted Turner is tangling with the U.S. Department of the Treasury. He wants to gain access to the fast-growing Cuban tourist sector, specifically he wants to be able to sell CNN and TNT to all the big hotel complexes that are going up on Cuban beaches. A U.S. government trade embargo with Cuba currently includes a provision that allows for the exchange of information. The success of the Turner lawsuit apparently hinges either on a lifting of the embargo outright – not likely – or on some reclassification of Cuban-bound satellite signals which the U.S. government now labels as commercial in nature. – PJB

NETLINK SERVICES MOVE

On November 12, three of Netlink's Denver 5 shifted transponders on Satcom C1. KCNC, the NBC affiliate, moved from channel 4 to channel 14; KRMA, the PBS affiliate, moved from channel 12 to channel 3; and KWGN, the Denver independent, went from channel 14 to channel 23. According to Pat Bisant at Netlink, the moves were made to stabilize the signals between the services.

PIRATE RAID IN SOUTH CAROLINA

On October 16, an 18-month investigation, known as "Operation Air Pirate," resulted in 35 undercover purchases of illegal descrambling devices. A Federal Grand Jury returned 20 indictments charging dealers and distributors in South Carolina with the illegal sale of such devices in violation of federal law. In addition to the indictments, FBI agents executed federal search warrants at 14 other South Carolina locations and seized business records and other illegally modified modules. The indictments are merely allegations at this stage until the cases come up for trial.

The South Carolina dealers have been trying to form an association to collectively fight the charges, but dissension in the ranks has prevented it thus far. Several dealers not raided have expressed concern that there could be at least 60 more raids in the near future in South Carolina.

PBS LISTINGS

For the past four years, PBS has been publishing a nationally circulated newsletter to dish owners free of charge. Contained in the publication were PBS information and programming scheduling specifically for dish owners. However, because of rising costs and the inability to finance the newsletter through public donations, PBS has been forced to cease publication. Consequently, PBS listings will now only be found in major satellite magazines like OnSat.

SKYVISION MOVES

"The Skyvision Show" has again changed transponders. In mid-October they moved to their new location of Westar 4, transponder 20.

NEW SHOPPING CHANNEL DEBUTS

A new shopping channel, Video Catalog Channel (VCC), has debuted on Spacenet 3, channel 16, and markets primarily collectibles such as sports cards and memorabilia, estate jewelry, coins and currency, gemstones, antique pocket watches, fossils and antiquities, and other unusual items. The new channel is geared specifically for dish owners. The program airs seven nights a week from 6:00 pm until 4:00 am.

ICN FORMS PPV SERVICE

Scheduled to launch at the end of October, a new pay-per-view television service specializing in international sports events has been formed by the International Channel Network. Netlink and ICN have signed a joint marketing agreement to promote and distribute the PPV events. The new service will provide coverage of major overseas sports events to cable systems and dish owners in the U.S. and Canada. Netlink will be handling all of the satellite dish orders. ◆

"B&B" FEEDS

I am a member of several "Beauty And The Beast" fan clubs. I am referring to the series starring Ron Perlman and Linda Hamilton.

What I would appreciate knowing is when and at what time can I receive this program? I was told that I would be able to get it on Saturday, September 28, at 5:00 pm, but it was to no avail.

– Mrs. Louis Sergio,
Westtown, NY

☞ Fear not "Beauty And The Beast" fan club members. Your favorite show is now in syndication after its one-year run on The Family Channel. You can find it in our Special Feeds listings on Mondays at noon (ET) on T1, 19 and also on Wednesdays at 9:00 am (ET) on T1, 19. Interested fans can find two "Beauty And The Beast" fan clubs at Circle Of City Lights, 4690 Cabana Way, Sacramento, CA, 95822 and Starving Artist's Workshop, 186 Westin Avenue, Albany, NY, 12203-1227. – Ed.

ABC FEEDS

My T1 channel 10 no longer comes in. You can hear it but the picture has lines through it. It is the regular programming time for ABC. I would like to know if there is another station I can tune into to get these programs.

– Valerie Schall,
Indicina, PA

☞ Because ABC scrambled their T1 and T2 feeds, you now have to subscribe to either the Netlink package of network affiliate signals on F1 or the PrimeTime 24 package found on F2. Dish owners are not allowed access to the national feeds of ABC or CBS anymore. – Ed.

"GREEN SHEET" DILEMMA

To anyone who has ever watched the "Green Sheet" program on television, don't send them any equipment to be sold on their show. They promised me on three different occasions $400 for my VideoCipher II before I finally sent it to them along with several other pieces of satellite equipment. That was last December 7 (1990) and I have called and written them on many occasions since then. I finally got confirmation today (October 19, 1991) that I had $138.60 worth of credit to be used on purchasing something from their show. Beware of Sean and Lolita from "Green Sheet." They will lie to you and steal your equipment.

– Steve Beeson,
Hagerstown, IN

☞ We called "Green Sheet" and talked to Lolita Marcusi who looked into the matter. She called us back and told us that "Green Sheet" had, indeed, failed to pay you properly for your VC II and that the situation would be remedied. Marcusi noted that they are not on computer and that your paperwork "fell through the cracks." – Ed.

PRICING DISCREPANCIES

I recently read an article in your Mailbag which explained the reasoning behind the outrageous pricing for satellite programming. These excuses were a high overhead and a poor percentage of people who actually pay for programming.

Being a businessman myself, I'm quite certain these high overhead divisions were created to make a buck for someone. Obviously, the consumer's best interest was not a priority.

I'm certain from what I've seen that the amount of satellite pirates is quite comparable to that of cable pirates. So, why is there a discrepancy in pricing?

It is also my opinion that when the VC II Plus becomes the dominate market descrambler, supply and demand will force pirate technology to compromise the VC II Plus security. Is the VC II Plus just another division created to make a buck at the consumer's expense?

– Matt Flood,
Las Vegas, NV

☞ While some estimates put the number of dish owners at well over three million in the U.S., the number of authorized descramblers is closer to 750,000, which is not a high degree of penetration. The cable industry has around 50 million subscribers and in some markets approach 80 and 90 percent penetration. Some estimates of signal theft in the satellite industry approach 70 percent, some in cable range in the 15 to 18 percent range.

While GI and industry insiders admit that the VC II Plus may be broken eventually, it may be so outlandishly expensive that no one would pay for it. That alone could serve to keep and reduce piracy to tolerable levels.

Only when the programmers feel that they can be properly compensated for their wares and the numbers warrant greater bulk discounts will the dish owner have a fair shake at reasonable and competitive prices.

GI equates the upgrade to VC II Plus with the computer industry. As new and more powerful technology comes along, upgrades become available. While you may or may not see the value of the new and more powerful VC II Plus technology, it can lead to the security of the satellite industry which is an added value to the programmers and helps ensure the longevity of the industry. – Ed.

RICHARD MADDOX'S

Doctor Dish

Q Dear Dr. Dish: We have a solution for the Tracker VIII+ multi-day programming problem. You have to use the revision 2.4 software with an Aztec or Sharp tuner. It's been out for a few months now and should solve the problem.

— Head Technician, McLean Satellite,
Gastonia, NC

A To obtain the newest revision software (which is stored in an EPROM chip) contact HTS service at 800/395-8876. If you are familiar with adding memory chips to a computer, then you could probably replace the chip yourself (it's in a socket on an easily accessible board). Otherwise, I'd recommend returning the receiver to HTS for service.

Sat-Pro II Plus Surge Protection System

By Richard Maddox

SAT-PRO II PLUS
Satellite Protection System
ON
EQUIPMENT POWER
POLARITY REVERSED AND/OR INSUFFICIENT GROUND
15 AMP
PRIMARY POWER

It takes but a few minutes of watching The Weather Channel to see how many lightning storms are hitting the central and southeastern USA each day, especially during the summer and fall months. It also takes only a fraction of that time for a lightning strike to take out a satellite system.

By now most people have realized how much damage a lightning strike can do and have bought surge suppressors for their power line and have "grounded" their dish — thinking they're fully protected. There's only one problem. Most of the systems damaged by lightning supposedly already had a "surge protector" on their system.

So, why are most surge protectors not able to protect a satellite system? Because most surge protectors are designed for power line surges only. And, unfortunately, a lot of satellite system damage occurs due to currents flowing in the cabling between dish and receiver rather than from the power line, which over-the-counter surge protectors do not stop.

The Sat-Pro II Plus is different. It was designed from the start for satellite systems — specifically for satellite systems. The designers are satellite technicians with over 10 years of experience repairing thousands of satellite systems hit by lightning.

Universal Research & Development, Inc., the manufacturer of the Sat-Pro II Plus, is a branch of The Satellite TV Service Center. Both companies are located in Swananoa, NC, an area with the second highest incidence of lightning in the U.S. Needless to say, they know lightning firsthand.

With more than three years of field tests to back up their claim of 99+ percent reliability of the Sat-Pro system, the people at Universal R&D feel so confident in their lightning surge stopping power that they back it up with a written guarantee. It states, "If a properly installed Sat-Pro II Plus fails and allows your satellite equipment to be damaged by a lightning induced spike or power surge, Universal R&D will replace or repair your Sat-Pro II Plus and your damaged satellite equipment free of charge."

Product Description

The Sat-Pro II Plus comes with a Surgender SE-1K surge suppressor (that fastens onto the LNB connector) and a 4 1/2-foot interface cable to tie the II Plus to your IRD. The interface cabling comes with the ends stripped, ready for installation.

Note that although only IRDs are mentioned throughout this review, older standalone positioners and receivers and combined receiver/positioners can also be protected by the Sat-Pro II Plus. However, you should consult a local satellite service technician about using the Sat-Pro II Plus on any equipment that uses connectors for the actuator and polarizer wires instead of terminal strips or spring clips.

The Sat-Pro II Plus unit is contained in a black plastic case (6 inches x 6 inches x 2.5 inches) that is designed to take the place of a multi-outlet AC strip. It is plugged into the wall using a single three-prong AC cord. There is a banana plug auxiliary ground connection (for two wire AC systems or isolated ground systems).

The unit is normally placed out-of-sight behind the TV or IRD, or in a cabinet. Because the unit must be manually reset after a brownout or power failure (which means it must be easily accessed), placing it behind obstructions or in hard-to-reach positions is not advised. The unit contains a master on switch and off switch for controlling power to your entertainment equipment.

The unit has five protected AC outlets to protect IRDs, TVs, VCRs, and other entertainment system components from spikes and surges on the AC line — both high voltage lightning-caused ones and low voltage motor or dimmer noise spikes.

An indicator tells if the ground is not good enough, or if the AC line voltage polarity is incorrect. If it lights up, you should have an electrician check out your house wiring.

An eight-screw terminal strip is used to connect the actuator and polarizer wires to the Sat-Pro unit. The dish wires can be connected using one of two methods:

1. The cabling is run from the dish to the Sat-Pro and then the interface cable is run to the IRD.
2. The dish wires are connected directly to the IRD along with the interface cable wires, which are then connected to the Sat-Pro unit.

Protection is identical using either connection.

The Sat-Pro II Plus also contains an integral phone line surge protector for a VIDEOpal Order Recorder (or it can be used as an extra level of protection for your telephone answering machine).

Four coax cable loop-throughs, labeled horizontal, vertical, Ku-band, and local, provide protection from lightning surges along the coax from the dish or your local TV antenna or cable system.

Two additional lights are used to indicate that power is active to the Sat-Pro II Plus (red) and that power is going to the entertainment equipment (yellow). If the yellow light is off, it indicates a power failure or brownout occurred. (The PFI or Power Fail Interrupt circuit was activated.) The on switch must then be pressed to turn the power back on.

Installation And Operation

Installation takes only a few minutes and usually only requires a screwdriver (#2 Phillips or a medium flatblade) to fasten the actuator and polarizer wiring to the terminals. However, if your LNB is not accessible from the ground, then a stepladder would be required to install the Surgender onto the LNB connector.

If you have multiple LNBs, you should contact your dealer or Universal R&D about obtaining extra Surgenders and extra lengths of coax cable to connect the Sat-Pro II Plus to your IRD.

Once the wiring is connected, the Sat-Pro II Plus can be connected to a three-wire AC outlet. At this point, the red primary power light should be on. If the red polarity light is also on, it indicates an electrical problem that must be corrected in order for the Sat-Pro II Plus to function properly.

When the on switch is pressed, the power relay in the Sat-Pro II Plus kicks in and the yellow equipment power light comes on. Pressing the off switch will kick off the relay, turning off the yellow light and the power to the entertainment equipment. This also occurs any time the line voltage drops below about 85 volts.

There is a 15 amp circuit breaker that may need to be reset on large surges. It is located next to the primary power lamp. If the primary power lamp is off, it indicates the circuit breaker is open or that there is no power to the wall outlet.

Technical Description

The Sat-Pro II Plus uses standard spike and surge suppression design techniques especially applied for satellite system operation. An integral 15 amp relay (part of the PFI circuit) is used to cut off the power any time there is a brownout or power failure. It activates any time the voltage drops below about 85 volts AC. It protects your entertainment equipment from the surge current and voltage spike that is typically generated when the power company turns the power back on. The unit must be then be manually reset by simply pressing the on switch.

Line noise is filtered using a ferrite toroid choke and high voltage capacitors. Three 130-volt metal oxide varistors (MOV) are used to shunt voltage spikes on the power line (hot to ground, neutral to ground, and hot to neutral). Eight 50-volt MOVs are used to protect the actuator and polarizer wiring (lead to ground).

The phone line is protected from surge effects using standard neon bulbs between all four wires and ground.

Warranty

The Sat-Pro II Plus is made in Taiwan especially for Universal R&D, to their specifications, using both American and foreign parts. It comes with a 10-year warranty. In addition, Universal R&D warrants that any satellite equipment properly connected to a properly installed Sat-Pro II Plus will be protected from lightning induced surge damage for the same period of time or else they will repair or replace the damaged satellite equipment.

The suggested retail price of the Sat-Pro II Plus is $249.00, which is substantially more than the run-of-the-mill surge suppressor from Radio Shack, but the Sat-Pro II Plus also does substantially more and does it specifically for a satellite system. If you live in a lightning prone area, it could certainly save your system from being hit with repair bills of hundreds of dollars and weeks of down time.

I found the Sat-Pro II Plus easy to install. However, since I didn't have a major lightning strike occur during the evaluation, I wasn't able to properly test its effectiveness. So instead, I will pass along a couple of testimonials (from letters supplied to me by Universal R&D) about the Sat-Pro II Plus system.

"I was ready to give up satellite viewing as lightning was eating me out of house and home. Any further insurance claims would have jeopardized my coverage so I was self-insuring the repeated lightning and static electricity losses...The big thing is that my losses ceased with Sat-Pro.

— Allan Johnson, Greensboro, GA

"I have actually seen my Sat-Pro unit turn off all power on several occasions. I live on the end of the power line and all problems appear to be coming my way... I am well satisfied with my unit and its performance."

— G.P. Blanchard, Rougemont, NC

Contact your local satellite dealer about the Sat-Pro II Plus or contact Universal R&D (P.O. Box 68, Swananoa, NC 28778, 704/298-2926) for more information about the product. ◆

"Deception: A Mother's Secret"

By Evan Levine

The first thing that Steven Weber wants you to know about "Deception: A Mother's Secret" (airing Sunday, Nov. 24, on NBC) is that it's better than the title might indicate. Weber, who plays a husband and father who fights for custody of his wife's young child after she is killed in a car accident, says that the title — one of many that were considered — is far "pulpier" than the story itself. The movie co-stars Mary Page Keller (ABC's "Baby Talk"), Katherine Helmond ("Who's The Boss"), and Robert Gorman ("The Accidental Tourist"). As Terry Milner (Weber) tries to adopt the child, he discovers that things were even less perfect than he had thought.

"You have to titillate an audience," explains the actor, who stars as pilot Brian Hackett on the NBC comedy series "Wings." "But this story goes deeper than your average TV fare. It doesn't go for sensationalism. It's the story that matters. And the title really betrays that. I know that you have to attract an audience, but the movie really is provoking."

Weber says that starring in the movie was largely a matter of chance. "What attracted me was the fact that it was offered to me," he admits. "I don't have the luxury of being able to pick and choose and look for projects, although more and more I'm getting offered things."

Weber quickly admits that he also liked the story. "On a broad note, it was serious, in contrast to the jocund job I have of making America laugh (on `Wings')," he explains, tongue in cheek. "I was struck by the emotionality of the story. It had a real twist. It won't turn your hair white or anything, but it does try to go deeper than other stuff. It does fall in the parameters of a TV movie, but it takes it a step further.

"As an actor, I'm looking for more opportunities to express myself," Weber says. "I liked this movie because it let me be more available to the material. I had to take things far more seriously than I normally do. And I'd definitely like to do more of those kinds of roles.

"I'm fairly hard on myself," he continues. "I'm rarely happy with an entire performance. This might sound ridiculous, but I'm not a deep thinker. When I'm acting, I'm usually hung up on technical constraints. During one scene in the movie, there were actually real thoughts racing through my head. Imagine that," he jokes. "I wasn't just standing there. Real thoughts."

Weber says he can chart the exact moment when he decided to become an actor. "Back in third grade," he says immediately. "We were doing `Where The Wild Things Are,' by Maurice Sendak — I can't believe I remember all this. I was a wild thing, kind of a dragon, and I became intoxicated, especially after I began to ad lib mercilessly, and I got laughs."

Although Weber says that there's only so much he can do to stretch his abilities on "Wings," he's still pretty happy on the series. "It's a great deal for me," he says. "It's good exposure, great money, and it offers an opportunity to do TV movies."

Returning to "Deception," Weber says, "This kind of movie falls within certain confines. But I think my favorite thing was having to take things far more seriously than I usually do."

“The Commercial Clutter”

Are you watching TV more but enjoying it less? Is your favorite show interrupted every seven minutes for “a word from our sponsor,” which turns out to be many words from nine sponsors? You’ve noticed it too, huh?

Some simple arithmetic may give us the answer. It’s no secret the networks have been losing their audience over the past few years. Once they ruled the roost with almost 90 percent of the viewers at any given time. But lately their audience has been deserting them in large numbers. Maybe they’re watching one of the new cable/satellite channels. Maybe they’ve rented a video for the evening. Or maybe they’re just unhappy with the sameness of what’s on the networks, year after year, and have gone looking for greener pastures.

Whatever the reason, “Things Ain’t What They Used To Be,” and that’s bad for the old profit sheet. How much a network or station can charge for their commercials is directly tied into how many viewers are watching the thing. Putting it a different way, let’s say they charged $20,000 for a prime time spot a few years ago. Today, with half the audience, that same commercial spot would only be worth $10,000, which means they’d have to sell twice as many just to break even. No wonder so many of the sales crew have ulcers.

There aren’t twice as many commercials on yet, although it certainly seems that way. But over the past few years the networks have slowly and slyly increased the number, hoping nobody would notice. Ask them about it and a nervous network executive will gasp and say, “Who, me?” Either that, or you get his secretary. “Mr. Jones just stepped out of the office Mr. Britton, and I don’t expect him back until next year.” Yeah, right.

Some time back a few citizens groups, angered by the number of commercials on Saturday morning’s kiddie-time, wrote their vote-conscious senators and congressmen demanding relief. The requests filtered down to the FCC, who woke up long enough to make a new rule, limiting the number of Saturday morning pitches aimed at Junior. The rule was set to go into effect this fall. Instantly the screams of toy manufacturers could be heard all the way to Peoria. “Christmas is our biggest selling season,” they wailed. “If we don’t sell four million Zipity Zaps, we’ll go out of business!” The FCC relented and the rule now goes into effect after the first of the year. Don’t hold your breath.

Meanwhile, the networks quietly continue to hack up programs to make room for even more clutter. This practice has also come to the attention of the advertising community and to say they’re not thrilled would be an understatement. Surrounding their commercial with a bunch of others means they’re getting less bang for their buck.

To squeeze more commercials into a given time period, programs have to be shorter. One advertising executive observed, “They don’t report anywhere what time lengths they request from producers. We’ve asked and they won’t tell us. But we know what they’re doing. They’re going to the producers and saying, 'I asked you for 24 minutes of program last year but I want 23 minutes this year.’ We don’t think that’s in the viewer’s best interest.”

Prime time clutter, as bad as it might be, doesn’t compare to daytime, with many segments exceeding 16 minutes of commercials per hour. No wonder “soap operas” take so long for a story to progress. She gazes soulfully at him...he gazes soulfully at her, and we break for more commercials. By the time they get back to the program, we’ve forgotten what’s going on. Maybe that’s just as well.

See you next week.

TIDBITS

By Cheryl Lavin

Author Alix Goldsmith has persuaded 70 famous folks to take a simple psychological exam, and the results are in Celebrititest (Fireside). See if you can match the following stars: 1. Kim Basinger, 2. Michael Douglas, 3. Dan Aykroyd, 4. Justine Bateman, 5. Roger Moore, and 6. Charlie Sheen to their psychological profiles: A. "Saw herself as fundamentally unattractive, her life as a series of disappointments, relationships as confining and limiting, society as stagnant"; B. "A visit to this man's mind is like spending time in a fireworks factory during an uncontrolled explosion"; C. "He is so surreal, so far out that sometimes neither he nor those around him know whether he is in control"; D. "Seems to stand outside himself, incredulously watching his life go by. Not very imaginative or innovative"; E. "A vibrant, sensual woman, perhaps a touch too generous with her feelings, a touch too flamboyant for some tastes"; F. "Either he does not think of himself as successful, or he feels guilty because he believes he has acquired his success fraudulently." The answers: 1-E, 2-F, 3-C, 4-A, 5-D, 6-B.

Everyone loves Woody Allen's comedies, except Woody Allen. He prefers his more serious movies. The reason, he explains in the December issue of Playboy, is: "My conflict is between what I really am and what I would really like myself to be. I'm forever struggling to deepen myself and to take a more profound path, but what comes easiest to me is light entertainment. I think I could be very funny in a comedy mystery, and it would be enormously entertaining in a totally escapist way. But I can't bring myself to do that."

"I only drink to make other people seem interesting." — George Jean Nathan

"I envy people who drink. At least they know what to blame everything on." — Oscar Levant

"When you stop drinking, you have to deal with this marvelous personality that started you drinking in the first place." — Jimmy Breslin

'Sinatra' Miniseries Delves Into Dark Parts Of His Life

By Marilyn Beck and Stacy Jenel Smith

Surprise! ABC's "Sinatra" miniseries — produced by Tina Sinatra, with input from her father, Frank — will not be, as many expected, an all-potatoes-and-no-meat look upon his life.

We've gotten an advance peek at the script synopsis for the Warner Bros. project that's slated to start production early next year for broadcast sometime in the '92 season. And according to what we've read, the five-hour drama will delve into some of the most controversial, even dark, aspects of Sinatra's life.

Included will be scenes delving into his mob connections, his womanizing ways, his arrest on a morals charge (for getting a woman pregnant) while he was engaged to marry first wife Nancy.

Even his beloved late mother, Dolly, will not be spared. Her arrest "for performing illegal operations" in the early days is included in the screenplay.

Before the story is through, we'll be taken into the back rooms of the Chicago mobs who were convinced by Frank to use their clout in the JFK presidential election, according to the script. We'll see that Rat Pack member Sammy Davis Jr., a tireless, highly visible worker for Kennedy, was quietly ordered to postpone his marriage to a white woman (Mai Britt) until after JFK's election. We'll have mobster Sam Giancana ordering the Rat Pack to make appearances in his nightclub.

Perhaps most moving will be the portrait painted of Frank's first wife, Nancy, who's left alone when her first two children are born, who suffers as her husband flaunts affairs with such beauties as Lana Turner, Marilyn Maxwell, and Ava Gardner.

Nope, Frank doesn't come out a hero in "Sinatra." It sounds, in fact, as if he sometimes comes out a heel.

- After raising eyebrows with a story of budding lesbian romance last season, "L.A. Law" is now looking for an actress to play a new gay female character in what could turn out to be a recurring role. Maggie will be introduced as the former lover of "Law's" bisexual associate C.J. (Amanda Donohoe) in a segment dealing with a bitter child custody dispute between Maggie and her ex-husband.

CELEBRITY PROFILE

By Cheryl Lavin

Vital Statistics

IMAN

Occupation: Actress.

Birthday: July 25, 1955.

Birthplace: Somalia.

Real name: Iman Abdulmajid

Current home: L.A.

Marital status: Divorced.

Child: A daughter, Zulekha, 11.

Car: A 1989 gray Mercedes-Benz 560.

Working on: Two movies, "House Party II" and "Star Trek VI: The Undiscovered Country."

The last good movie I saw was: "Rambling Rose." It dealt with female sexuality in a way I've never seen before.

Nickname: Diva.

Favorite performer: David Bowie.

Prized possession: Myself.

Personal hero: Gamal Abdel Nasser

I'm better than anyone else when it comes to: Having a fashion sense.

I'd give anything to meet: The painter Frida Kahlo.

I hope I never have to: Compromise.

My fantasy is: I'm in a desert, all alone.

The worst advice my mother ever gave me was: "You can't do that."

The one thing I can't stand is: When men think that because you're beautiful, you must be dumb.

People who knew me in high school thought I was: Not goodlooking. Their standard of beauty was different. I couldn't get a date.

I knew I was grownup when I: Made my first decision at the age of 5. I had a row with my mother and decided not to visit her. I was in Cairo, she in Saudi Arabia.

Behind my back my friends say: "She's arrogant."

If I couldn't be an actress, I'd love to: Work for the enviroment through the United Nations.

GUIDE TO KID'S TV

"Riders In The Sky"

By Evan Levine

Dust off you spurs and saddle up: One of the freshest new network entries for kids is "Riders In The Sky," (CBS, Saturdays) a Western-style variety show that mixes singing, storytelling, live action, claymation, puppets, cowboys, and more.

The cowboys, who have names like Too Slim and Sourdough, live on Harmony Ranch with a number of sidekicks, ranging from a buffalo to an Indian princess. Our favorite parts of the show are the crafts (we learned how to make very nice painted rocks) and the storytelling, which features Western twists on old favorites like "Rapunzel." You have to like a story that, instead of the prince climbing up her hair and rescuing her, ends with Rapunzel (here, "Rope-punzel") cutting her hair. We also liked an amusing interlude done in claymation about a giant Gila monster who crashes a barbecue.

Max, who's 6, said it was very cool. He also said it was "pretty funny."

The show has a homey feeling with occasional touches of irony, and we cast our vote for more of that. There are clunky touches — a few of the puppets look downright awkward, and some of the corny jokes (endless ones about the cooking of one of the cowboys) made us wince. Still, it sure can be fun.

Ratings Scale: 1-10 (10 is the highest)

Appropriateness: 9 — Very kid-friendly. OK for those 5 and up.

Humor: 8 — It aims for a mixture of cynicism and gentle humor, but it may take a while to find just the right tone.

Social Value: 7 — The shows have gentle morals about relationships and getting along.

Believability: 7 — Some of it seems a little forced.

Fun Factor: 8 — A strong and lively mix of elements.

Evan Levine is the author of "Not The Piano, Mrs. Medley!" a picture book from Richard Jackson/Orchard Books.

SOAP OPERA WEEK

By Kimberly Redmond

Walt Willey, who plays Jackson Montmery on "All My Children," reminds me a lot of Richard Mulligan, who stars on "Empty Nest." Are the two related in real life? — A.P., Corpus Christi, Texas

Although there is a bit of a resemblance between Willey and Mulligan, they are not related.

What can you tell me about Jeff Phillips, who is creating the role of Hart Jessup on "Guiding Light"? — S.R., Macon, Ga.

Born in Hillsdale, NJ, Phillips knew early in life that he was headed for an acting career despite the uphill battle that he knew he would encounter in trying to attain his goal. He studied with Anthony Abeson's Acting Workshop and enrolled in Scene Study with film actress Ann Jackson at the HB Studio. Prior to joining "GL," Phillips landed several national commercials for Goodyear Tires, Prudential Insurance, and Hyundai. An avid skier, Phillips was featured in the documentary film "The Art Of Skiing." Although the role of Hart is the first long-term contract soap role for Phillips, he did appear in the recurring role of Johnny on "Another World," as a recurring character named Terrence on "One Life To Live," and as Kevin Marshall, a friend of Andy Dixon (played by Scott DeFreitas), on "As The World Turns." The actor appeared in several episodes of the syndicated series "Super Force," and was featured in an episode of "Miami Vice."

Yes, that was Bergman in the role of newscaster Warren Taylor.

(Do you have a question about soap operas? Write Kimberly Redmond at 200 Park Ave., Room 602, New York, NY 10166. Questions cannot be answered personally, but those of general interest will be answered in future columns.)

ASK ME ABOUT TV

By Toni D'Amato

Has George Carlin ever had a series of his own? Where is he from? How old is he? What is he doing now? — P.G., Harrisonburg, VA.

Carlin has never had a series of his own, but the comedian was a cast member on "That Girl" for one season and a regular on the variety shows "The Kraft Summer Music Hall," "Away We Go," and "Tony Orlando and Dawn." Born and raised in New York City, Carlin hosted the first episode of NBC's "Saturday Night Live" in 1975. Since then, he has maintained a regular performance schedule, averaging 10 concerts a year. He wrote a book titled Sometimes a Little Brain Damage Can Help, and he has been featured in the films "Outrageous Fortune," "Bill & Ted's Excellent Adventure," and "Bill & Ted's Bogus Journey." He appears with Barbra Streisand and Nick Nolte in the upcoming film "Prince Of Tides." His latest album is "Parental Advisory Explicit Lyrics" on his own label, Eardrum Records.

(Do you have a question about a celebrity? Write Toni D'Amato at 200 Park Ave., Room 602, New York, NY 10166. Questions cannot be answered personally, but those of general interest will be answered in future columns.)

TUESDAY

Forrest (Sam Waterston) and the children get ready for a special Thanksgiving visit by Gwen from the hospital on "I'll Fly Away." And Lilly is surprised when her college-educated brother comes by from Newark, NJ, but tensions soon ensue. The episode airs Tuesday, Nov. 26, on NBC.

"102 Boulevard Haussmann"

The French novelist Marcel Proust (Alan Bates), who was asthmatic from childhood, lived and worked in an ornate, soundproof bedroom at "102 Boulevard Haussmann." Tucked up in his bed, he worked compulsively on rewrites of his classic "Remembrance Of Things Past." Rarely venturing out into the world, Proust relied on his faithful housekeeper, Celeste (Janet McTeer), to fulfill his every need. On a rare evening out, Proust attended a concert by a string quartet performing Cesar Franck's Quartet in D and was smitten with the war-wounded viola player, Amable Massis (Paul Rhys). While a less patrician suitor might have taken a more direct approach, Proust hired the entire quartet to perform in the bedroom of his home. Writer Alan Bennett ("An Englishman Abroad," "The Insurance Man," "Prick Up Your Ears") teams up with long-time collaborator, producer Innes Lloyd, and creates a provocative and darkly humorous character study of a great writer in his declining years. Airs Tuesday, Nov. 26, at 9:30 pm and 1:30 am (ET) on A&E.

—— TRAVEL ——

"Travel Bargains"

The Travel Channel brings travel bargains home to its audience with "Travel Bargains," an innovative weekly series that airs daily at 9:30 am, 2:30 pm, 8:30 pm, and 1:30 am. All times Eastern.

"Travel Bargains" is a service that provides the lowest available published airfares exclusively for Travel Channel viewers. The program offers viewers an opportunity to call "Travel Bargains'" toll free number for reservations and tickets at the lowest guaranteed published prices. In fact, if a cheaper fare on a regularly scheduled airline is published before travel originates, The Travel Channel will refund the difference.

THURSDAY

When better to phone home than Thanksgiving, Thursday, Nov. 28? It's only appropriate, then, that CBS airs the 1982 Steven Spielberg blockbuster "E.T. The Extra-Terrestrial" that night. Henry Thomas stars as the boy who finds a visitor from another planet literally in his backyard.

SATELLITE LOG

"Princes In Exile" Is A Crowning Glory On USA

By Kirk Nicewonger

Because it is a movie about kids who have cancer, and because it airs Thanksgiving eve (Wednesday, November 27) on USA Network, "Princes In Exile" will probably not get anything near the audience it deserves. But those who give it a chance will be glad they did: This Canadian film is among the finest cable offerings of the year.

"Princes In Exile" is set at Camp Hawkins, a summer camp for children and teenagers with cancer. Ryan (Zachary Ansley) arrives with two goals — to get his journal published and to lose his virginity. Ryan, a deeply sensitive and highly intelligent teen who has always wanted to be a doctor, has a brain tumor, and the prognosis is not good. His rage at the injustice of this is almost palpable; when he walks through the woods he sees not the lush profusion of nature but a metaphor for the runaway growth of his disease.

He shares a cabin with Robert (Nicholas Shields), a daredevil who quickly gains the nickname of "Stunt Man" for his feats on a motorbike; Louis (Gordon Woolvett), a bespectacled, good-natured kid with an artistic bent; and several other adolescents. It is Ryan who suggests they name themselves "Princes In Exile," who sees their hopes and future as a castle with the drawbridge closed against them.

But "Princes In Exile" is not a movie about kids with cancer; it is a movie about kids with cancer. And, in the course of this one memorable summer, Ryan experiences almost an entire adolescence, filled with discovery and loss, romance and disappointment, misplaced aspiration and achievable accomplishment. We didn't sense a single phony moment in it: It's laughs come from the way kids really act, think and talk; its sad moments are neither maudlin nor milked. It's about life, not dying. By the time Ryan leaves for home, his physical prognosis remains uncertain, but an undeniable healing in him nonetheless shines.

"Princes In Exile" is rich in sentiment but stingy on sentimentality. Ansley, Shields, Stacie Mistysyn (as Holly, a camper who teaches Ryan about growing up — really growing up, without the sniggering-up-the-sleeve connotations that teen-exploitation movies have given the phrase) and Chuck Shamata, as the doctor who runs the camp, all give strong, understated performances.

It's a shame that more people won't see "Princes In Exile" But those who do will not soon forget it.

IN THE SPOTLIGHT

Edward Rutherford

By Cheryl Lavin

Historian/novelist Edward Rutherford wraps his history in fiction. He tells the story of Russia from its earliest days to the present in a historical romance, Russka (Crown).

Q: Is Russia a fundamentally different country today from what it has been throughout its history?

A: No. Many things have remained constant: the strong sense of communal life, the vastness of the country coupled with poor transportation, a lack of an infrastructure, and a weak economy that exports its raw materials.

Q: How has the communal spirit hurt the country?

A: Since their earliest times, Russians have believed that if everybody got together and worked tremendously hard for a short time, they could solve any problem. In the most backward Russian village, a church would be built in a day. The same idea was behind all the agricultural five-year plans. But that kind of thinking doesn't work in a modern industrial society.

Q: The Russian people have never known democracy in modern times. Do you think they will take to it?

A: Yes, because the people have started to travel and see other ways of life, and they watch them on TV. They're educating themselves toward democracy.

A: The Slavs are basically very moody, artistic, gentle but with a long tradition of domestic violence. When a woman got married, her father handed the bridegroom a whip. They're deeply religious, and as the young people search for their roots, they will go back to the Russian Orthodox Church. We're likely to see a huge cultural and religious renaissance take place very quickly. This return to the church is both good and bad. Good, because it is the repository of Russian culture. Bad, in that it contains some very conservative and anti-Semitic elements.

Q: Are you optimistic about Russia's future?

A: In the long term, yes. But in the short term, they still need enormous help from the West.

FRIDAY

How often have you said to yourself, "Gee, I sure wish Vanilla Ice would ram a motorcycle through a solid wood wall that has been set on fire with gasoline?" Well, on Friday, Nov. 29, you'll get your wish, as the rap star performs just that stunt on "All New Circus Of The Stars & Side Show," on CBS.

DR. DISH

By Richard Maddox

Dear Dr Dish:

I have an Automation Techniques GLR-560 receiver with a VC II. Sometimes the signal meter numbers on the diagnostic screen jump all over the place and it won't lock in. Other times they lock in for a bit but then drop out and won't come back on. All unscrambled channels work fine. Do you know what could be wrong? Do you know where I could get my receiver fixed if that's the problem?

— Drexel Murphy,
Franklin, TN

Automation Techniques still makes commercial satellite receivers, so I would imagine they can still work on the older consumer equipment. They're located in Tulsa, OK (918/836-2584).

A few things to check before sending off your receiver — check all your wiring out at the dish, especially where it may rub against part of the dish. If there is a cut in the cable, water can infiltrate and cause symptoms like you describe. Also check your connectors. Corrosion in the connector can cause signal level fluctuations. Also check for spider's nests in the feedhorn since this will cut down your signal level resulting in fluctuating levels.

Is there any satellite on which all the VideoCipher channels appear to work perfect? If so, then you may have an alignment problem with your dish, which can cause only one or two satellites to come in clear, with all the rest coming in much lower in received power. Usually this will result in noisy pictures on unscrambled channels as well.

Finally, it may be a case of the receiver and VideoCipher no longer working as a matched pair due to circuit component tolerances having drifted. Again, this could be found out by talking with Automation Techniques.

If you have a technically-oriented question on your satellite system, or on satellite television in general, you now have a place to write for an answer. Send your question to the address listed below. Sorry, Dr. Dish is unable to send you a personal response.

SATURDAY

Tom Hanks and Carrie Fisher star in "The 'Burbs," a 1989 film comedy airing Saturday, Nov. 30, on CBS. They play a young couple whose quiet home life is upended when a strange family moves into the neighborhood — and strange noises begin emanating from the newcomers' home at night.

The Syndicated Sweepstakes

With the introduction of a wide variety of new syndicated programming, special feeds have become inundated with choices.

• • • • • • • • • •

By Bill Britton

It was just a few years ago that satellite feeds of syndicated shows was a sometimes thing. I remember OnSat printing a little list of feeds they'd found. There were about a half dozen shows in all. I'd seen a few others and sent them into the magazine. About a week later I got a letter. Would I like to do this on a regular basis? "Sure," I replied. "Throw money."

So, our Special Feeds list was born. Our baby was less than half a page long and didn't change too often. Satellite delivery of shows to TV stations was still new and a lot of the syndicated stuff was still being shipped on tape. Early feeds of network shows were almost nonexistent. My, how times have changed!

Today our baby has become a monster. With the start of the new fall season, OnSat's Special Feeds list has grown to over 500 entries. Our dish has become a horn of plenty and it's overflowing with goodies.

But, is this great abundance such a good thing? Not necessarily. Quantity doesn't always mean quality, as we will see.

Everybody seems to be talking these days. There's a lot of loot in yakking. The "Donahue" and "Oprah" shows became such money machines everybody wanted to get into the act. Geraldo and Joan came charging out of the gate; and, although they have yet to catch up, each has developed a respectable audience. Some viewers tune to Joan for the latest bits of juicy gossip about the stars, while others can't wait for Geraldo to expose the scandal-of-the-day. To each his own.

This fall there were three newcomers looking for a piece of the "can we talk" pie. On "The Chuck Woolery Show," the affable host of "Love Connection" proves to be a capable interviewer. He also knows when to shut up and listen to what his guests are saying, an essential quality missing from

I've always liked Maury Povich, ever since he hosted "A Current Affair." He came across as warm, caring, and friendly. But now that he's in a big studio, complete with an audience, he seems a bit lost and unsure of himself. Hopefully, this will wear off; but, until it does, we'll give this show a "maybe."

Jenny Jones is a breath of fresh air. The former back-up singer for Wayne Newton became a comedienne who achieved some notoriety when she insisted no men were allowed in her audience. She's pretty, bright, and articulate. Her TV show, which is still geared toward the gals, is also attracting a lot of male viewers. Can't say I blame them.

So, how are the newcomers doing in the great ratings race? Just so-so, according to early reports. They're not too bad when on by themselves; but, if a competing station has an "Oprah" or a "Phil" in the same time slot, they get clobbered. Industry experts say it takes two years for a new talk show to find its audience, so hang in there gang! However, whether America is ready for seven talk shows, five times a week, is another question.

Okay, are you ready for a quickie quiz? What syndicated shows have been the most popular over the past few years? "Jeopardy" or "Wheel Of Fortune" you say? Nope! "The Oprah Winfrey Show" led the pack in 1987. "Cheers" galloped in the following year and Bill Cosby marched his TV family into first place in 1989. "Who's The Boss?" was the winner in 1990 and "Golden Girls" grabbed the big brass ring this year. Notice anything about that list? All but "Oprah" were reruns of hit shows previously seen on the networks. Now, isn't that interesting?

Leading the pack in the new season is "Married ...With Children," the sometimes controversial show that helped the fledgling Fox network make a dent in our Sunday night viewing habits. Most stations are running the show five nights a week in the valuable 7:00 to 8:00 pm time period and killing the competition. It's been called the hottest syndicated off-network show since "M*A*S*H" or "Happy Days," and that was back in 1979.

Another favorite has been revived with a brand-new series, but with a few of the original cast members. "WKRP In Cincinnati" is back and station managers who bought the show are smiling all the way to the bank.

"Candid Camera" has returned and benefits from the presence of the effervescent Dom Deluise. He's quite a change from the rather staid Allen Funt, who was the host and creator of the original. The staged stunts may be the same but Dom skillfully puts an air of idiocy on the whole proceeding, which makes it a lot of fun.

Two animated kiddie shows debuted this fall to good ratings. "Bucky O'Hare" and Disney's "Darkwing Duck" are well done and sometimes very funny. Even adults will enjoy watching them along with the kids. Go ahead and watch, sir. We won't tell anyone.

Shows to avoid? Well, there's a new one called "Saved By The Bell." This juvenile junk is more of the "how to go to school and not learn anything" genre and looks like a "Parker Lewis Can't Lose" clone. It shows kids hoodwinking teachers, ignoring parents, and never showing up for class. The acting is amateurish and the scripts are worse. In fact, I hate this show so much it'll probably be a hit.

The bottom line? There's far too much syndicated stuff being offered this year. Television stations have just so many empty hours to fill and a lot of the new shows won't find enough buyers to make them profitable. When profits go out the window, shows go down the drain. The Special Feeds list may get smaller as the season progresses.
